

EDITORIAL...

We are delighted on publishing our first volume of Multi-Disciplinary Exploration: The Kasthamandap College, a peer reviewed journal. It publishes annually by Research Management Cell (RMC) of Nepal Kasthamandap College, Kathmandu. It has created new opportunity to professionals who are engaged in education and research sectors. It provides a forum for academicians and researchers from a variety of subjects to discuss hot-button topics in their fields for successful educational endeavors and new knowledge additions to the corpus of knowledge.

We are very proud of the robust peer review team we have assembled, which includes reputable academicians and researchers from a wide range of fields. This team carefully adheres to the double-blind peer review method, which ensures the journal's high standards of quality.

Twelve articles on various topics from disciplines like language, science, health, education, and information and communication technology are included on this Journal. These concerns are considered current and advantageous to the educational industry. The language of all articles is English.

We are extremely grateful to our peer review team for helping to make this journal a gold standard. All of the authors who submitted papers are also much thanked and urged to continue contributing to this magazine by addressing current concerns in their domains. Finally, we want to reassure the readers that there won't be any ethical considerations compromised in the publication of this journal.

Thanks!
