Editorial

It is a great pleasure to write a few words for the volume 2 issue 1 of Nepal Journal of Mathematical Sciences (NJMS), an official peer-reviewed journal published by the School of Mathematical Sciences (SMS),Tribhuvan University. It is devoted to publishing the original research papers as well as critical survey articles in all parts of mathematical sciences and applications to science, industry, and society.

The inaugural issue of the journal was published in 2020 October both online and in a printed form consisting of nine research articles. The issue includes seven research articles in different fields of mathematics and mathematical sciences. We are highly grateful to all the eminent authors of this issue for publishing their scientific research works on this issue. We are expressing our gratitude to all the reviewers and editors for their enthusiastic assistance, and support in this unpaid work. We would like to proceed with different scientific indexing shortly by promoting the quality of the journal to make NJMS a standard international publication.

Lastly, the editorial board would like to request research scholars and scientists all around the world to submit their original research articles for the upcoming issues to the journal as an international standard publication related to Mathematical Sciences.
