It brings us immense delight to introduce the latest edition of Pursuits: A Journal of English Studies, showcasing a diverse collection of insightful and thought-provoking academic contributions. Throughout history, the evolution of knowledge has underscored the fluid, dynamic, and multi-dimensional nature of reality and understanding. In light of this, we actively discourage static and rigid viewpoints in academic exploration, opting instead to engage in research endeavors that adapt to the ever-changing nature of reality. Realizing this fact, the Department of English at Patan Multiple Campus has launched Pursuits as a forum for scholarly discourse and intellectual exchange among academics, researchers, and learners alike. Our aim is to foster collaboration in intellectual enhancement through research endeavors. Since its inception, Pursuits has remained committed to nurturing the advancement of ideas and knowledge that embraces the newly emerging perspectives.

Research serves as the lifeblood of intellectual endeavors across all disciplines embracing the interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary nature of reality. Without the diligent work of research, academic endeavors turn futile and unproductive. Intellectual enhancement thrives on the collaborative sharing of ideas and knowledge nurtured by rigorous inquiry. Scholars, researchers and learners who engage in research form a discourse community through such collaborative efforts. Our journal provides a platform to join this community and contribute to the collective advancement of knowledge.

In this issue, you will find a diverse range of research articles that explore pressing issues, innovative ideas, and emerging trends within the English Studies. We invite you to enjoy the content of this journal, engage critically with the ideas presented, and join us in advancing the frontiers of knowledge. Thank you all contributors for your invaluable support of academic inquiry and scholarship.

I express my deepest gratitude to Dr. Laxman Singh Kunwar, the campus chief of Patan Multiple Campus, for his unwavering support and cooperation in bringing this journal to fruition. Dr. Kunwar has consistently demonstrated solidarity with our mission to provide a platform for scholars, academics, and researchers to share their work. I extend heartfelt appreciation to all the authors, peer reviewers and editorial board members who have dedicated their time and expertise to ensuring the quality and rigor of the work presented here.
